I cover what's interesting in wine, spirits, food and travel.

The historic Villa Cetinale AIRBNB

Renting a villa in Tuscany is on almost everyone's bucket list and for seriously good reasons. Included in each stay: peach-toned sunsets, cerulean blue skies, vineyard-covered hillsides perfumed with jasmine-scented air, what's not to love? Maximize your exposure to as much bucolic Tuscan splendor as you can with a stay in any one of these villas. Some are expertly-run hotels while others are private rentals, and all will deliver on the best the Italian countryside has to offer.

Toscana Resort Castelfalfi

Everything from golf and tennis to a new range of wellness programming (guided hikes, organic facials) is on offer at this sprawling Tuscan retreat. Book one of the many villas (several are located along the golf course) for the ultimate in privacy. Consider, I Bianchi, a 6,000-foot artfully restored farmhouse with 5 bedrooms, pool and pool house as well as a fitness center and lavish garden. Three restaurants are on-site as well as the resort's winery and olive orchard. Guests can even "adopt" a vineyard row or olive grove and partake in harvest.
