Villa Copenhagen – fusing the historic with just the right amount of hip

Copenhagen, Denmark

For those looking to avoid peak crowds and temperatures, spring is the best season to visit Copenhagen. And if you're going to this cosmopolitan city, there is no better place to stay than Villa Copenhagen. Once the headquarters of the Danish post office, the historic location exudes stately appeal with a social atmosphere. Ideally situated next to Tivoli Gardens (where rides reopen in late March), in the heart of the city, Villa Copenhagen's ethos is dedicated to sustainable luxury – for example, its rooftop swimming pool is heated by the building's excess heat.
